Collaborating with classmates and professors keeps me balanced. I've improved as a writer by learning from others. Now people reach out to me.

We don't have to be in constant competition.

I think people say it a lot, but I really believe you should talk to your professors. I feel really lucky that I've developed relationships with mine who I can say, "I'm really overwhelmed with this" and they're understanding because they also know what a pain it is in my life. You're not going to get what you don't ask for! I've gotten a lot of support.
