EAST ASIAN STUDIES

Chair, Associate Professor Hong Zhang (Chinese)
Professors Hideko Abe (Japanese), James Behuniak (Philosophy), Kimberly Besio (Chinese), Walter Hatch (Government), Nikky Singh (Religious Studies), and Ankeney Weitz (Asian Art History); Associate Professors Daniel LaFave (Economics), Steven Nuss (Music), and Hong Zhang (Chinese); Assistant Professors Inga Kim Diederich (History), Deirdre Martin (Government), Laura Nuffer (Japanese), and Andie Wang (Chinese); Visiting Assistant Professor Viktor Shmagin (Japanese History); Language Assistants Kuei-Lan Cheng (Chinese) and Mika Kawashima (Japanese)

Language courses offered by the department are listed separately under “Chinese” and “Japanese.”

The East Asian Studies Department offers students a multidisciplinary approach to understanding Japan, China, and Korea. Our mission is to build language competency in Japanese or Chinese and provide in-depth exposure to traditional and contemporary East Asia through a wide variety of course offerings across the humanistic and social science disciplines.

A major in East Asian studies will achieve an ability to communicate effectively in English and an East Asian language, to critically interpret texts, to develop research skills using primary sources and data, and to acquire a comparative understanding of the region. Students achieve these goals through an immersion experience in East Asia as well as their course work at Colby.

Requirements for the Major in East Asian Studies

One introductory comparative course (East Asian Studies 150); a language concentration consisting of three language courses beyond the all-college requirement (normally Japanese 128, 321, and 322 or one 400-level Japanese course; or Chinese 128, 321, and 322 or one 400-level Chinese course); one capstone course, East Asian Studies 493, taken only in the fall semester of the senior year; and an additional six courses chosen from those approved for the East Asian studies major. These six courses must conform to the following distribution: one 200-level art, religion, philosophy, literature, or music course; one 200-level government, anthropology, economics, education, history, or sociology course; one 300-level or 400-level course; and three additional electives. Fourth-year language courses or three- or four-credit East Asian language courses outside the language concentration may constitute elective courses. Students who start taking Chinese or Japanese at the 300-level or above are expected to take at least four language courses, which may include three- or four-credit independent study Japanese 491, 492 or Chinese 491, 492. East Asian studies majors are required to spend at least one semester of study in the country of their language concentration. Under extraordinary circumstances students may petition to substitute an equivalent immersion experience in the country of the language concentration for a semester of study.

The point scale for retention of the major applies to all courses offered toward the major. No requirement for the major may be taken satisfactory/unsatisfactory. To achieve distinction in the East Asian studies major, the student will have to achieve a 3.5 grade point average in the courses listed for the major and will have to take two additional language courses beyond those required for the major. These courses may be a continuation of the language of concentration at the 400 level, or they may be introductory courses in a second Asian language.

Honors in East Asian Studies

An honors program is available for senior majors who have earned a 3.5 major average. Normally, application to the program must be submitted prior to the senior year. Some aspect of the culture of East Asia must be studied as the honors project in East Asian Studies 483 and 484.

Attention is called to the minor in Chinese and the minor in Japanese. Requirements for these minors are listed under “Chinese” and “Japanese.”

Requirements for the Minor in East Asian Studies

The East Asian studies minor consists of six courses: one introductory comparative course (East Asian Studies 150); two language courses at or above the 126 level in either Chinese or Japanese; three non-language courses, one at the 200 level, one at or above the 200 level, and the third at the 300 level or above. Courses may be selected from offerings in anthropology, art, economics, government, history, literature, music, philosophy, and religious studies courses on East Asia. With the exception of one introductory comparative course, no content course at the 100 level will count toward the minor.

Courses Approved for the Major in East Asian Studies

Art
- 173 East Asian Art and Architecture to 1300
- 174 East Asian Art and Architecture, 1300 to the Present
- 276 Zen and the Arts in Asia
- 378 Chinese Visual Culture
- 398 Japanese Visual Culture
• 393 Museum Practicum (when appropriate)

Anthropology
• 339 Asian Pacific Modernities
• 254 Global Local Asia

Chinese
• All courses offered

Cinema Studies
• Topics in Global Cinema: Contemporary Japanese Cinema

East Asian Studies
• All courses offered

Economics
• 279 Economic Rise and Future of China

Government
• 256 Introduction to East Asian Politics
• 355 Winners and Losers in Chinese Politics
• 356 Winners and Losers in Japanese Politics
• 357 Political Economy of Regionalism

History
• 197 History of Modern East Asia
• 144 Patterns in East Asian History to 1600
• 146 Modern East Asian History 1600 to Present
• 297A Modern Japan
• 297 A History of Samurai
• 351 Desiring Asia Gender and Sexuality in East Asia
• 397 Minorities in East Asia
• 397C Special Topics in Premodern Chinese History
• 397 A Global History of Manga and Anime
• 398 Maine in Japan

Japanese
• All courses offered

Music
• 254 Music of Meditation
• 275 Cultured Tough Guys: Samurai Devotion, Music, Poetry, and Art

Philosophy
• 265 Chinese Philosophy
• 266 Buddhist Philosophy

Religious Studies
• 212 Religions of China, Japan, and Tibet
• 263: Buddhism Across East Asia

Course Offerings

EA120s Nature in East Asian Literature and Culture Combines readings of traditional literature with an exploration of the perceived relationship between nature and man, as reflected in the literary, visual, and material culture of China, Japan, and Korea. Students will improve writing skills through weekly writing reflections, two short essays, and one research paper. Other goals include, hone analytical skills through close reading of East Asian texts; reflect critically on the relationship between the natural world and man in East Asian culture, and how these views might enrich our own; and acquire an understanding of how literature and art can both shape and reflect our world view.

Four credit hours. L, W1. BESIO
EA144f  Patterns in East Asian History, to 1600  Listed as History 144.
Four credit hours.  H.  DIEDERICH

EA146s  Modern East Asian History, 1600-Present  Listed as History 146.
Four credit hours.  H.  DIEDERICH

EA150fs  Foundations in East Asian Studies  An exploration of the foundations of East Asian civilization, with a focus on reading the classical texts of ancient China, Korea, and Japan. Provides an introduction to East Asian studies as an interdisciplinary field of study, as we explore interpretations of these foundational texts from a number of perspectives (philosophical, historical, artistic, political, etc.). Students will also work on improving writing and research skills.
Four credit hours.  H, I.  SHMAGIN

[EA212]  Religions of China, Japan, and Tibet  Listed as Religious Studies 212.
Four credit hours.  S.

EA220j  Contemporary Chinese Art  Examines the artistic expressions of China, from the early 20th century to the present day. We explore the roles played by artists and their art in defining and articulating change; consider both traditional and new forms of art (woodcuts, film, fashion, performance); and learn about Chinese art's global identity today. Attending to the complex interactions between art, history, politics, and culture, we investigate focused topics such as: environment issues, society, politics and the state, and popular culture.
Three credit hours.  A.  WALT

EA221s  Second Language Pedagogy  An introduction to current research and theory in the area of second language acquisition (SLA). Students will gain an understanding of theories of SLA; the similarities and differences across first and second language acquisition; and the role of individual differences in language learning (including age, first language, and aptitude, among others). Students will also become familiar with the implications for SLA of sociolinguistic differences for English across time and space in the United States. A humanities lab intended for students who are interested in second language learning and teaching.
Four credit hours.  WANG

EA222j  Contemporary US-Japan Relations  The US-Japan relationship is one of the most intriguing in modern history. These two disparate nation-states fought an extremely destructive war that left a seven-year occupation by the US, and yet they have developed one of the world's most stable and positive political, military, economic, and social relationships. This class will examine how that relationship looks 68 years after the end of the occupation in the age of global communications. American isolationism, and the increased power of China. Topics will include the military alliance in light of a strengthen China and the Japanese government's attempt to change the Constitution, economic relations in a post-Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) world, the fate of cross-cultural programs such as the Japan Exchange and Teaching Program.
Three credit hours.  STRONACH

Four credit hours.

[EA224]  Music and Culture in Modern China  Explores Chinese music in relation to China's modern history (1911-to-present) and key cultural elements. Surveys a wide range of genres from traditional to modern, from colonial Shanghai to Mao's proletarian art, and from folk to rock. Examines the unique role of music in Chinese society through wars, nation building, and ideological conflicts. Knowledge of Chinese language is not required.
Three credit hours.  A.

EA225f  China in Transition  Listed as Anthropology 225.
Four credit hours.  S, I.  HRISKOS

EA231f  The Chinese Novel: Vignettes of Life in Imperial China  A critical examination of the development of classical Chinese literature of various genres such as poetry, popular songs, philosophical discourse, historical narrative, prose, fiction, tales of the supernatural and the fantastic, romance, and drama. All readings are in English translation.
Prerequisite: W1 course.
Four credit hours.  L.  BESIO

[EA242]  Development and Environmental Issues in Contemporary China  Will use textbooks and reading materials that provide the social science approach in studying environmental issues in China. Although China is the second largest economy in the world, it is still a developing country on the per capita basis. This course will explore the issues of developmental rights vs. environmental protection, and environmental justice and the human and health costs of ecological degradation and industrial pollution at the global level.
Four credit hours.  S, I.

Four credit hours.  H, I.

EA252s  Hell on Earth? Chinese Writers on Modern Chinese Society  An examination of how Chinese writers used literature and film to address the political and social crises their country faced during the 20th century. Through close readings of literary and cinematic works, students will reflect critically on the experiences of the Chinese people as they struggled to modernize and reform society. Students will reflect on what these experiences might teach us about our own society as well as contemporary China, and they will develop their ability to express insights both orally and in writing. Four credit hours. L, I. BESIO

[EA253] Three Kingdoms in Chinese Literature  China’s Three Kingdoms Period (220-280 BCE) inspired thrilling stories that were told and retold in the following centuries, in China and throughout Asia. By tracing the migration of the Three Kingdoms story cycle over time and space, students will acquire an understanding of the continuing legacy of traditional Chinese culture up until the present, and will become familiar with the defining characteristics and formal requirements of the major genres within Chinese literature. Course goals include the development of critical thinking and research skills, as well as the ability to communicate insights effectively, orally and in writing. Prerequisite: Any W1 course. Four credit hours. L.

EA254s Global-Local Asia  Listed as Anthropology 254. Four credit hours. MILLS

EA256s Introduction to East Asian Politics  Listed as Government 256. Four credit hours. S. MARTIN

[EA261] Japanese Language and Culture  An introductory course on Japan in which we explore a global perspective of how Japanese people interact and see the world through knowledge of their own culture and language. Examines cultural patterns of Japanese society by looking at various political, social, economic, and gender relations among people in current times. Analyzes the variety of ways in which culture is consumed, reconstructed, reproduced, and manipulated in various local contexts. All readings are in English, but students are expected to memorize Japanese terms that signify Japanese culture and language. Four credit hours. S.

EA265f Chinese Philosophy  Listed as Philosophy 265. Four credit hours. BEHUNIAK

[EA266] Buddhist Philosophy  Listed as Philosophy 266. Four credit hours. L.

[EA268] Politics of Satire and Humor in Modern China  Explores the evolving role of satire, jokes, and comics in modern China from the Republican Period (1912-48) to Maoist China (1949-78) and reform-era China (1978-present). Particular attention to new and historical forms and targets of Chinese political humor as a way to understand changing state-society relations. Should the proliferation of political humor on the Internet be seen as a sign of new political openness or a part of everyday forms of resistance under authoritarian rule in contemporary China? Four credit hours. S, I.

[EA273] Survey of East Asian Art, to 1300  Introduces the arts and cultures of Asia from the prehistoric period to 1300 CE, with due attention paid to basic art-historical methods and techniques. Lectures focus on critical analysis of artistic style, technique, expression, subject matter, iconography, and patronage. Students learn about the history and beliefs of East Asia, including Buddhism, Confucianism, Daoism, and Shinto. At the same time, they enhance their visual literacy skills, including recognizing the cultural forces underlying viewing expectations and experiences. Students develop and demonstrate these skills through weekly quizzes, a paper, and two examinations. Four credit hours. A.

[EA274] East Asian Art and Architecture, 1300 to the Present  Introduces the arts and cultures of East Asia from 1300 CE to the present, with due attention paid to basic art-historical methods and techniques. Lectures focus on critical analysis of artistic style, technique, expression, subject matter, iconography, and patronage. Students learn about the history and beliefs of East Asia, including Buddhism, Confucianism, Daoism, and Shinto. At the same time, they enhance their visual literacy skills, including recognizing the cultural forces underlying viewing expectations and experiences. Students develop and demonstrate these skills through weekly quizzes, a paper, and two examinations. Four credit hours. A.

EA275s Cultured Tough Guys: Samurai Devotion, Music, Poetry, and Art  Listed as Music 275. Four credit hours. A, I. NUSS

[EA276] Zen and the Arts in Asia  Introduction to Zen philosophy, history, and practice, with an emphasis on the ways in which the religion has transformed the aesthetic outlook and artistic production in China, Japan, and the United States. Through class discussions, group projects, and individual writing assignments, students hone their textual and visual analysis skills by actively reading a variety of art forms through the lens of Zen concepts and practices. Students achieve a basic competency in East Asian historical development and Buddhist religious thought, and learn about the aesthetic implications of belief, including an examination of how their own cultures and belief systems color their experiences of the arts. Four credit hours. A.
[EA277] Culture of Cuteness: Japanese Women (in English) Surveys the diverse experiences of Japanese womanhood. While the stereotypical image of Japanese women being humble and reserved persists, we will challenge these images by examining how Japanese women manipulate their gender roles to negotiate their power and status both within and outside the family system. We will also examine the complex factors that frame the phenomena of “cuteness” in Japan. By exploring the diversity of Japanese women's everyday lives, we will analyze how the notion of cuteness has been explored and/or rejected and how a broader band of girl culture extends to adult women and their power as consumers. All readings are in English. Four credit hours. S, D, I.

[EA279] Economic Rise and Future of China Listed as Economics 279. Four credit hours. I.

EA280s Topics in Global Cinema: Contemporary Japanese Cinema Listed as Cinema Studies 280. Four credit hours. KIM

EA297f Words from the Floating World: Literature of Early Modern Japan Japan's early modern era (1603-1868) witnessed a literary revolution driven by the rise of the "floating world" — the term used by the emerging urban middle class to describe their pleasure-seeking lifestyle. The literature of the floating world encompassed a wide variety of themes, ranging from romance to revenge, supernatural horror to slapstick humor. This course offers an introduction to significant texts of the period, including popular novels, kabuki plays, and haiku poetry. Students will acquire cultural and historical knowledge of early modern Japan while developing the literary-critical skills necessary for effective textual analysis. Four credit hours. L. NUFFER

EA298s Language, Gender, and Sexuality: East Asian Languages Explores the relationship between language and gender in three East Asian cultural contexts (Japan, China, Korea). We examine: (1) the linguistic treatment of diverse genders; (2) the linguistic performance by people with diverse gender identities; (3) the normative ideology of language and gender and its implications; (4) the historical development of gendered speech norms and their associated ideology; and (5) the relation between the normative ideology and the range of real speaking practices that constitute verbal lives. Four credit hours. S, I. SHMAGIN

EA298Bs Everyday Modernity in Japan When talking about Japan, modern is often coded as western, and traditional as Japanese. Japanese politicians and cultural authorities, along with Orientalist western intellectuals, have been happy to highlight this distinction. However, though modernization in Japan did usher in tremendous, often traumatic changes, not every aspect of modern Japanese life came from the west. Moreover, most aspects of modern culture are popular in Japan, and are not seen as foreign impositions. This course examines the intermingled, complex history of modernity in Japan, highlighting on its presence in the daily lives of ordinary Japanese people. Four credit hours. S, I. SHMAGIN

[EA339] Asian Pacific Modernities Listed as Anthropology 339. Four credit hours.

EA346s China and the World Listed as Sociology 346. Four credit hours. S, I. FANG

EA351f Desiring Asia: Gender and Sexuality in East Asia Listed as History 351. Four credit hours. H, I. DIEDERICH

[EA353] Globalization and the Rise of China Globalization refers to a variety of political, economic, cultural, and social changes transforming our world. Countries are increasingly interconnected by flows of information and technology, capital and labor, ideas and culture. We will use China as a case study to address some major issues concerning globalization: its problems and prospects; terms of trade between and among nations; sweatshop labor; the role of states, markets, and global institutions; human rights and cultural preservation. Prerequisite: Anthropology 112 or East Asian Studies 150 or Government 131 or History 250. Four credit hours. S.

[EA355] Aging and Public Policy in East Asia Students will combine ethnographic studies with demographic data to compare and analyze how East Asian countries cope with challenges of rapid population aging and to explore public policy shifts regarding state and private responsibility for the wellbeing of the elderly. Utilizing interactive data from the United Nation Population Division to compare and project aging trends including fertility rates, life expectancy, median age, and dependence ratio in East Asia. Students will also make two field trips to local eldercare facilities to gain comparative insight on the challenges of aging and eldercare provision in Maine, one of the grayest states in the United States. Four credit hours. S, I.

[EA358] Political Economy of Regionalism Listed as Government 357. Four credit hours.
[EA359] History of Chinese Feminism  Listed as History 359.  Four credit hours.  H, I.

[EA377] Japanese Visual Culture  Introduces students to conducting art-historical research on an aspect of Japanese visual culture. While the topic changes from year to year, students learn about Japanese cultures of representation, visuality, and display. Topic for Fall 2019: Japanese Woodblock Prints.  Prerequisite:  Art 101, East Asian Studies 150, or any course on East Asian art history.  Four credit hours.

[EA378] Chinese Visual Culture  Introduces students to art-historical research on an aspect of Chinese visual culture. Students learn about Chinese cultures of representation, visuality, and display; they identify and propose innovative research questions; and they write a series of papers answering those questions. Topic for Fall 2018: Natural Science in Chinese Painting. A large segment of Chinese paintings consists of carefully rendered botanical and avian subjects, often generically referred to as "bird and flower" paintings. We will investigate the scientific and cultural context for these images and identify the specific birds and plants.  Prerequisite:  Art 101, East Asian Studies 150, or any course on East Asian art history.  Four credit hours.

EA397f  A Global History of Manga and Anime  Japanese comic books and cartoons are known throughout the world by their Japanese names: "manga" and "anime." This is no accident, but a reflection of their enormous global popularity. Why are they so popular? What does their popularity say about the place of Japan in today's global culture? How did these two phenomena emerge and develop, and how do they influence each other? Our class will explore these and other related questions through readings, screenings, discussion, and original research.  Prerequisite:  East Asian Studies 150 or History 276.  Four credit hours.  I.  SHMAGIN

[EA483] Honors Project  An interdisciplinary analysis of an aspect of East Asian culture employing diverse sources and methods. Independent study, extensive readings, consultations, and a thesis. Successful completion of the honors project and of the major will result in the degree being awarded with "Honors in East Asian Studies."  Prerequisite:  Senior standing, a 3.5 major average, and permission of a faculty mentor.  Three or four credit hours.

[EA483J] Honors Project  Noncredit.

EA491f, 492s  Independent Study  Individual study of special problems in East Asian civilization, offered in the departments that participate in the program.  Prerequisite:  Permission of the instructor.  One to four credit hours.  FACULTY

EA493f  Seminar: Advanced Research in East Asia  An examination of methods for researching East Asia. Introduces students to the major debates that have come to define the field of East Asian studies, from John Fairbank's "response to the West" to Edward Said's "orientalism," and prepares them with the skills necessary to engage Asian sources for independent research. Students will develop an independent research project on East Asia in any area of the humanities or social sciences, which, with approval from the student's major department, may be developed into a senior honors thesis.  Prerequisite:  East Asian Studies 150 or relevant course work in East Asia, and permission of the instructor.  Four credit hours.  ZHANG