

Who?

Eleanor Powell ('14) is a Global Studies major with a minor in Women, Gender, & Sexuality Studies and a concentration in Human Rights.

Where?

Leiden and The Hague, the Netherlands, through Brandeis in the Hague. 6 weeks during the Summer of 2014.

What?

Eleanor's program was six weeks long. The first four included seminar classes at Leiden University, with the last two weeks spent in workshops at the Hague through the Grotius Center, which focused on the International Criminal Court.

Why?

Eleanor spent her first semester of college as a Feb Frosh in Salamanca, Spain, so she didn't want to miss another semester at Colby. The summer program fit her perfectly. After graduation, Eleanor plans to work for a while, then attend law school. The Grotius Center was the most helpful and the most fun part of her experience: along with practicing international attorneys, the student's got to engage in mock cross examinations and court cases.

Thanks Eleanor!
